GENUINE SKILLED CRAFTS

HERE, ALL THAT GLITTERS IS INDEED » GOLD

In Regensburg, skilled crafts and trades have been offering golden prospects since as early as the Middle Ages. Many traditional skilled craft & trade businesses have stood their ground in the city and defied industrialization. Why? Because they were not only better than what industry had to offer, but were also sustainable – in a time before this became a buzzword. A lot of new skilled crafts and trades have also established themselves in Regensburg. Young, passionate crusaders offer creative ideas and products based on traditional skilled craftsmanship. Get exploring and take a look behind the scenes. Meet fascinating people and businesses! And, with a bit of luck, you'll even be able to watch them work and discover something new.

THE STRADIVARIS OF IT'S ALL

» Every instrument is a unique piece

A fascination with the traditional craft of violin-making has been in the Goldfuss family's blood for three generations. Their instruments are distinguished by top quality, optimum sound, and timeless beauty. Precision-crafted soundboards, backs, and masterfully carved scrolls make them highly unique pieces. Even copies of old masters modeled on those made by Antonio Stradivarius and Joseph Guarnerius del Gesu are made true-to-original here. For nearly 100 years, this establishment has dedicated itself to restoring and repairing valuable string instruments, enabling them to once again ring out with a new, radiant sound. They're also creative here: Their patented "Goldfuss Premio" bridge for cellos and double basses creates new sound spheres for the instruments. IN THE BAG: HANDMADE RATTAN CRAFTS

HANS WEGER – KORB- UND
RATTANWAREN

» Exceptionally gifted hands, whether it be handling rattan or playing the piano

Just like his father, Hans Weger is the third generation to have learned the trade of basket-weaving at the basket-weaving college in the Franconian town of Lichtenfels. The wares on display in his store are anything but mass-produced goods. All kinds of baskets for household use, as well as picnic baskets and furniture items to last a lifetime, abound here. He makes premium, customized rattan furnishings for terraces and conservatories, along with entire seating sets. And his clients come from far and wide. Hans Weger is one of the few still proficient in complex weaving techniques, and who is able to repair the likes of historic chairs. He also enjoys sharing his knowledge as part of weaving courses. In the middle of the store is a grand piano, and Hans Weger plays it masterfully with his magic hands. Everything he plays is self-composed. A kind man of many skills and talents.

ART & HANDICRAFTS MEET PUNS

What makes this place so special is the fact that its printing methods remain the same as those used back in Gutenberg's day. Owner Susanne Kauth describes her store, with its adjoining workshop, as a "mix of art, fine handicrafts, and puns". High-quality handmade paper is still printed on manually using bicep-building historic letterpress printing machines with moving lead & wooden letters and antique stereotypes. Every print – or, more specifically, every Blinkfuer letterpress card – is naturally a unique piece, boasting impressive creative design. "It's always a long process from the artistic draft to the finished hand-printed card," Ms. Kauth explains. A rarity in this fast-paced day and age, this time and effort is visibly

THE OLDEST STORE IN REGENSBURG

The pharmacy was founded on Wahlenstrasse in 1259. Heinrich Peisinger is believed to be its first pharmacist. It relocated to its present-day location in 1637. The Engel Apotheke has been operating in the heart of Regensburg's Old Town for over 760 years, and has been supporting the health of Regensburg locals and visitors at Neupfarplatz for 384 years. Pharmacist and owner Antje Bullmann has been running Regensburg's oldest store since 2015. Along with all the usual pharmacy services relating to prescriptions and medications, the consulting here is focused on naturopathy, natural cosmetics and baby & family needs. It also offers cosmetics mixed to your specific requirements. Ideally after a comprehensive skin analysis. The pharmacy's specialty is the Schmidl Bitter elixir. This delicious bitters with digestion-supporting and stomach-settling medicinal-herb extracts is named after Ulrich

Schmidl von Straubing, who constructed the pharmacy building. He is considered to be the co-founder of Buenos Aires, and was the first historian of Argentina and Paraguay.

CHESS AS AN ART FORM: THE MARQUETRY MASTER

*DER SCHACH- UND INTARSIENLADEN
IM ALTSTADTQUARTIER
HOTEL MÜNCHNER HOF*

Marquetry is the term used to describe filigree wooden artworks. Not far from Neupfarrplatz, the shop window of master cabinetmaker Johann Zimmermann is fascinating enough in itself. After taking his Master Craftsman's Examination, he specialized in marquetry, and opened a chess and marquetry store at the Münchner Hof hotel in the Old Town as early as 1972. This decorative technique involves fitting different woods together on a flat surface to create a pattern or motif. Individual wooden pieces are laid on the base material. They are then sanded down until a flat surface is achieved. You could also say Johann Zimmermann paints with wafer-thin pieces of wood, and that the scalpel is his brush. Johann Zimmermann loves veneers, which he masterfully applies to his marquetry. His reputation extends well beyond Regensburg's borders – a large marquetry piece by him adorns the patent office in Munich, for example. As a “tree psychologist”, Johann Zimmermann is especially interested in trees battered by wind and rain. “They have the best grain,” he says. He loves unusual timbers, and searches for them right across Europe. He has been collecting these rare timbers for decades, using them to craft his unique chessboards, which are regarded highly by connoisseurs worldwide. His store is also considered a hidden gem among DIYers, because highly attractive veneers are versatile, and practical tips are thrown in for free.

BRINGING NATURE TO THE OLD TOWN

» BLUME NO.9

Christian Simmler and his team have set themselves the task of bringing nature to their flower store in the Old Town. What they create are floral works of art that enhance every home, clinic, and office. Even the shop itself is extraordinary. It was built in 1425 and features old used, framing and heavy planks – making the store something very special. Blume No.9 got its trade name from its building number: 9. The Blume No.9 team accessorizes the urban-look store with additional creations, using natural materials free from plastic and throw-away junk. They prefer to invest in creativity, harmonious colors and diverse materials. Along with all kinds of flower arrangements, the store also sells classic bouquets and memorable wedding decorations. Customers will also find decorative plants, and some-

RETHINKING FASHION

MODELABEL
MARIEJULIEE

Expert bespoke tailor and fashion designer Julia Liedtke has run the Mariejuliee fashion label in Glockengasse since 2015, where she also sells her own collection, crafted specially for customers. Personal requests can similarly be catered to.

The designer places great emphasis on ensuring her clothing is sustainable and recyclable. Her philosophy is known as "Slow Fashion". New materials are chosen based on strict criteria. Even discarded clothing is transformed into unique pieces to extend the items' life cycle.

A favorite dress that has been outgrown is turned into a new favorite top, while leftover old jeans and fabric scraps are used to create unique patchwork skirts or casual jackets. "Fashion should be fair to all people and the environment," she says. Rediscover new, sustainable fashion!

This has to be the largest range of handcrafted brooms, brushes, and combs still on offer anywhere in Germany. The store on Glockengasse, just a few minutes from the cathedral, is a Regensburg institution – and known well beyond the city's borders. The space in which Waltraud Ernst and her granddaughter continue the traditional craft founded by Peter Ernst in 1894 is not even 215 sq. ft. in size, yet it also doubles as a warehouse. knowledge of materials: The bristles must not slip out of their holes, even after years of use – this is one of many quality criteria that distinguish handcrafted brushes from the mass-produced wares made in low-wage countries. And that's why they also last a lifetime. Natural bristles are even better: for both hand-brushes and hairbrushes alike. The store sells handcrafted quality products that the family business has been making for generations, and which are extra special in every respect.

Alexa and Peter Voigtlaender are two 100% skilled artisans who dedicate great skill and imagination to practicing their craft in the heart of the old town. The materials they use are clay, stone, and wood. Alexa fuses traditional skilled craft with simple, timeless design in her crockery collections and creative custom-made items. Her creations have even been used by Germany's first Michelin-star sushi restaurant. Peter Voigtlaender works more with wood and stone, crafting extraordinary works of art. But he also makes wooden lids for Alexa's lunchboxes, as well as special chopping boards and serving boards. The friendly couple complement each other perfectly, and also enjoy sharing their knowledge as part of creative courses. They have run their workshop on Weissgerbergraben in the heart of Regensburg since 2012. It's always worth a visit.

The compact but classy workshop in Regensburg's Stadthof district stocks shoes made by sought-after, reputable manufacturers – it has been THE place in the city for welted, practical, comfortable footwear for over 35 years. Particular emphasis is placed on the production method, the use of special leathers, and an accurate fit. One business, two generations. The father (a master shoemaker) and son (a master orthopedic shoemaker) both agree that "shoes are our passion!"

Anything that passes over the counter here is examined very closely, and only the very best is included in the range. When it comes to shoes, the offering here is extensive.

ART MEETS CRAFT

The Kuss-Künstlerhaus is run by a cooperation of Regensburg artisans. It exclusively sells high-quality, contemporary handicrafts made in Regensburg.

This includes glass art by Annemarie Bengler, felt artworks by Karin Miethaner, ceramics by Dagmar Reinecke, and paper art by Ina Zeller-Bleil. When you visit, you will always find an artist on hand to discuss things with in person. The store was created in 1999, the product of a workshop community, and was the first of its kind in Regensburg. CUTTING EDGE: THE KNIFE CONNOISSEUR

The store on Taubengasse has been an institution in Regensburg for nearly 200 years. It's where fully-fledged cooking pros, celebrity chefs, and the everyday Joe Blow come to get their knives sharpened. Blade-sharpening, particularly for premium knives, is a science in itself. And even those considering buying a new knife should definitely have a chat with August Birzer before making their purchase: What is the knife being used for? Are Japanese damask knives better for my needs? What are the hallmarks of a good knife? Few are able to explain things as clearly and with as much empathy and friendliness as he is. He is the knife connoisseur par excellence, and just knows what it's all about. The store, with its adjoining workshop, has been running since 1828. As a member of the 7th generation, the master cutler offers advice to his many customers day in, day out. His decades of experience are palpable with every phrase he utters. Cook's knives, pocket knives, outdoor and hunting knives, shears and yes, even samurai swords are all available at his store. And there are always some free hints and tips to boot.

THE KING OF HATS:
FOR CELEBS,
ARISTOCRACY, AND HOLLYWOOD

HUTKÖNIG

Familiar with the Walt Disney movie Alice in Wonderland? A magical fairy-tale with Johnny Depp starring as the mad hatter.

His hat was created personally by none other than the Hutkönig ("Hat King"): Andreas Nuslan – the hat-maker by the cathedral. His customers include celebrities and actors such as Princess Gloria von Thurn und Taxis and Jan Josef Liefers. He even presented Joseph Ratzinger himself with a personally crafted hat. He has an excellent understanding of faces, and of which hat suits them. You could say he's a little "hat-mad", but in a good way! He lives and loves any and every kind of hat, and is a twofold master of his craft – specializing in both men's and women's hats, making him the only person in the world to do so. At his manufactory, which opened here by the cathedral in 1875 and is now into its 4th generation, every hat is made, and of course customized, in keeping with the best craftsmanship traditions – just as they always have been.

Welcome to Andreas Nuslan's display workshop

His craft is the only one of its kind anywhere in the world. It requires as many as 80 work steps before a piece of hare felt can be transformed into a high-quality hat. During normal opening hours, visitors to the new display workshop at Krauterermarkt can watch live as the master crafts one of his hats. The store, meanwhile, boasts fabulous hats in all shapes and colors. Discover your "hat face" here!

ALL THAT GLITTERS AND MORE

Where does one find a couple like Heike Andres and Stefan Zimmermann these days. Between the cathedral and banks of the Danube work two people who truly understand their craft and create stunning pieces of jewelry. Here, all the glitters really is gold, though they source their gold from fair trade. He, the master goldsmith, silversmith, and jewelry designer, and she, the jewel goldsmith and precious-stone setter, have attracted customers from far and wide with their unique creations. They even customize wedding rings to individual specifications.

“CREATIVE PILOTS” WITH ORGANIC
LEATHER

The THANN store is located at St.-Georgen-Platz, opposite the new Haus der Bayerischen Geschichte (Bavarian History Museum). It's all about functional, no-nonsense products crafted by hand from genuine organic leather. Every item is made entirely on site at the workshop, from the very first to the very last step. This is the process used to create sustainable products that last their owners a lifetime.

THANN – GUTES LEDER

The business' two owners, Jonas & Christoph, took over a traditional Regensburg store and further developed an old craft. And, in 2018, this concept saw THANN named a "creative pilot" by the German federal government. Their store-cum-workshop presents a small but sophisticated range of belts, key chains, wallets, watch straps, and bags.

ALWAYS HANDY

Simply scan the code and get to know even more artisans and their offers or download the brochure to your phone.

Where can you still find a brush-maker or knife-sharpener in the city?

Who makes customized hats for royalty, celebs, and Hollywood movies? Who makes Stradivarius violins for musicians worldwide? Regensburg artisans – whether properly traditional or young and creative – boast genuine, impressive craftsmanship. Get to know incredibly interesting people and their businesses, which operate so innovatively and sustainably that they can even be considered role models for the 21st century.
